Treatment of submissions – Anonymity and confidentiality

The Commission is calling for written submissions as part of its work. Submissions are ideas and opinions from members of the public about matters relevant to the Commission's terms of reference.

Submissions can be made by individuals or on behalf of groups or organisations. Submissions are usually public documents which may be viewed by the Commissioners and Commission staff, published to the Commission's website and referenced or quoted from in its public reports.

However, at the request of the submitter, submissions can be treated as:

- anonymous, meaning that the Commission will remove all details that may identify the submitter
- confidential, meaning that no one but the Commissioners and Commission staff can view the submission.

If you do not ask for anonymity or confidentiality, your name and the contents of your submission may be made public, but not your contact details (e.g. your address).

The Commission reserves the right to redact (black out) any information from a submission, including for legal, privacy and/or safety reasons, prior to publishing a submission to its website. The Commission also reserves the right not to publish any submission if it considers it inappropriate to do so.

Please select one of the following options

I am happy for this submission to be made public and for my name/the name of the group or organisation to be included.

I ask that my submission be treated as anonymous, but it is ok to publish it and quote from it (name and identifying details will be removed).

I ask that my submission (or the parts that I identify) be treated as confidential, and not be published or quoted by the Commission.

Acknowledgements

In making my submission, I understand that:

- I may be contacted by the Commission in relation to my submission.
- My name/the name of my group or organisation will be part of my submission if published to the Commission's website or referenced in its reports, unless I tell the Commission I do not want this to happen. Other contact details will be removed before publishing.
